TeamLogic IT, a California-based information technology service franchise company, is targeting the Triad, Triangle and Charlotte for five new offices over the next three to five years.

The company's expansion into North Carolina is part of a larger growth plan to open more than 15 new offices within the next year.

TeamLogic IT offices provide the small business community with an in-house IT department and services ranging from data backup and recovery to computer repair. The company is specifically seeking franchise owners in Greensboro and Winston-Salem.

"North Carolina's small- to medium-sized business community has a strong dependency on technology and our franchise partners have the opportunity to meet the market demand for high-quality, responsive IT support," said Chuck Lennon, president of TeamLogic IT, in a statement. "We are looking to grow with franchisees who are savvy business professionals who have a sincere desire to run their own business and hire the technicians to provide this much-needed service in their local market area."
